Essay Topic :

I would like to share an event that has drastically changed my life from the person I was to the person I am now. That was winter month of 2014 when my mother was diagnosed with 2nd stage cancer. It took me days and weeks to absorb that this has really happened and I have to be strong enough to look after my mother. Immediately my father took my Mom for treatment when I was left with my relatives. Being a growing teenage no doubt I needed my Mom to be by my side to guide me all along my way. But nature has its own planning. Being the single child of my parents, I started playing the role of both boy and girl. At the very young age of my school itself I fell down emotionally and mentally but at the same time my life took a new turn where I started maturing fast. I started understanding and handling things more appropriately. One thing kept me alive was my positive thinking which reminds me every time that if I am suffering from this issue then there are many unstable and critical children facing problems and troubles day to day. My Mom always takes me to the places where I can learn things from the surroundings. Similarly she took me to Tata Memorial Hospital where I saw kids 1-6 months are suffering from cancer. Seeing them, I eventually became bold and strong to manage my life, career, my parents, house holdings, finance, etc. Although my positive attitude took my Mom back to me after a long treatment of 2 and half year but late a year again she was diagnosed with advanced metastatic recurrence, when doctor declared her life span for a period of 3 years. Again it ripped me apart and knowingly, unknowingly I became more responsible, caring, obedient, emotionally and mentally stable person. Within a period of 6 months, as we may say who can stop God's plan to happen and it was discovered that the cancer cells were grown up to the brain to which she has only a period for 3-6 months and this was made unknown to me. When eventually I saw my mother had neuro attacks, I came to know her days were counted. Although she left me in the mid-way of my journey to complete my desires but her teachings and sacrifices keep me stand still to complete my duty and look after my father.
